ASU MAT ECHO PROGRAM

EPISODE #12 WITH DR. ADRIENNE LINDSEY

THE BENEFITS OF HAVING AN INTERPROFESSIONAL HUB OF EXPERTS TO DISCUSS MAT-RELATED TOPICS

The ASU MAT ECHO program strives to establish a state-level collaborative partnership to scale evidence-based education and practice in the management of patients with substance use disorder (SUD).

This program is specifically designed to provide the knowledge, support, and resources necessary to increase the capacity and confidence of providers to effective practice medication-assisted treatment (MAT). Not only is this program offered at no cost to clinicians, CE credit will also be provided to all participants.

This program is targeted to:

- Primary care providers
- Specialist providers
- Behavioral health specialists
- Social workers
- Community health workers
- Case managers
- Anyone interested in learning more about best practices for MAT

More information about the program and how to join can be found at the Project ECHO website.
